

The Representation of Afghani Refugees in Press

Saqlain Hassan

By addressing the research question how the international press represents the Afghani refugees this corpus-assisted discourse study will be aiming to find out the behavior of the press towards Afghan refugees in their host countries around the world. After 9/11 the Afghan refugees in different countries faced negative media trails and that is why this study is important in knowing the media's attitude towards the Afghan refugees. For this purpose, a corpus will be collected in the form of newspaper articles from online databases, such as, LexisNexis academic. The Sketch Engine and Wordsmith Tools will be used for the analysis of the corpus. The results of this research will provide us an insight into the injustice found in the behavior of media in affecting the attitude of common men towards minorities and especially Afghan refugees in their host countries.
